

The many interruptions in my life, have led me here. Here, where there was no possible chance to move forward. The interruption namely Cancer but now God has blessed my life by affording me the opportunity to function in today's society with grace and some independence. I am a single parent, female with a female daughter and limitations already in place; but I manage to rise above that as well...I learned patience and I have known disappointments in this life but I continued upward.

I foresee a future of reaching goals and many opportunities. Improving our quality of life means finding obtainable means to Education resulting in careers and opportunities. We must adapt to any and all possibilities and adjust accordingly, purposefully to exist and excel in order to obtain the optimal goal, Independence for life. I have yet to master the art of independence therefore now I will need all the financial support I can muster through this process. Which is just another interruption to a brighter future.

I Dream, as we all do at times, I will never cease until I succeed. My intent is to empower myself for survival, and not to mention the successful attempt as a single parent, unemployed but not defeated. I live through it and will continue too with great aspirations for the future. I have completed the "New Beginnings" a program of Polk County with more positive outlooks for the future. I have enrolled in the Lakeland, Florida Polk community College for the Summer 2002 to begin a new fight to success. An author once said," The desire of knowledge, like the thirst of riches, increases ever with the acquisition of it".

The greatest priority goal for me has been life and conquering and surviving which, I have done successfully as a Cancer patient. Without the belief of a higher being God, life would have empty meanings and be without a purpose. With the help of my Seventy (70) year old mother's wisdom and positive directions also she supported my inner strength to move forward. I am a single parent with a history of positive ideas continued through my daughter, who by the way is an Honor student and a product of my mother and me.

The next priority goal is educating my mind to fuel my ability to secure a Career Employment. The training I desire is in Business and /Computer Systems a career employment that is wide spread you will find employment opportunities throughout the labor spectrum. Throughout my lifetime I have noted the necessity of Business Communications, society could not exist without this component. Business is the foundation of order in every task we employ.

The greatest challenge in life is knowledge of self. I am empowering for the knowledge, learned wisdom through life's lesson. Education as a tool to control the decisions I make, type of living standards and successes; which God has graciously allowed time to do so. I thank God's wisdom; an ordered life detailing opportunities to obtain the independence for inner peace. Thank you, in advance for the possibilities and that my dreams of yesterday may be my New Beginnings of tomorrow's Successful Goals.
